

Abstract

A device in a vehicle for monitoring the environment around a vehicle is described, characterized in that objects in a
5 detection range of the sensor system are selected as a function of parameters so that only the selected objects are tracked by the sensor system. This permits adaptive use of reversible restraint means in particular.

10 (Figure 1)